I. BACKGROUND

Polimaster Ltd. (“Polimaster”) is a limited liability company formed in the Republic of Belarus engaged in the manufacture and sale of instruments and components used to detect various types of ionizing radiation. Na&Se Trading Co., Limited (“Na&Se”) is a corporation organized under the laws of Cyprus engaged in the business of licensing the rights to proprietary information and industrial intellectual property to be used in foreign countries. RAE Systems, Inc. (“RAE”) is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in San Jose, California engaged in the development, manufacture and sale of environmental safety monitoring devices. Its original emphasis was on gas-detection technology, but it recently has entered the 1 market for radiation detection devices.

2 On January 15, 2003, Polimaster, Na&Se and RAE entered into an agreement entitled 3 “Nonexclusive License for Proprietary Information Usage” (“License Agreement”). The License
 4 Agreement enabled RAE to manufacture and distribute four Polimaster radiation monitor
 5 instruments in the United States and China.² In addition, the License Agreement required RAE 6 to pay a seven percent royalty to Na&Se on each subsequent sale of a licensed product.³ On the 7 same date, Polimaster and RAE entered into a second agreement entitled “Product and 8 Component Buy/Sell Agreement” (“Buy/Sell Agreement”). Pursuant to the Buy/Sell Agreement, 9 RAE was to buy from Polimaster components necessary for the manufacture of radiation monitor 10 instruments. In addition, RAE was to complete the manufacture and/or subassembly of the 11 radiation monitor instruments and sell the finished products to Polimaster. The Buy/Sell 12 Agreement contained a confidentiality clause that required that all information, knowledge and 13 documents exchanged between the parties be kept confidential. Both the License Agreement and 14 the Buy/Sell Agreement provided that disputes between the parties would be submitted to 15 binding arbitration. The License Agreement specifically provides that “[i]n the case of failure to 16 settle the mentioned disputes by means of negotiations they should be settled by means of 17 arbitration at the defendant’s side.” Neither agreement specifies a choice of law.

18 In 2003 and 2004, disputes arose between Polimaster and RAE regarding RAE’s
 19 exclusive right under the License Agreement to manufacture instruments pursuant to an order 20 placed by the United States Coast Guard as well as RAE’s duties under the confidentiality 21 clause. Pursuant to the arbitration clauses in the parties’ agreements, Polimaster and Na&Se 22 initiated arbitration at RAE’s site in California. The parties agreed to use JAMS Comprehensive 23 Arbitration Rules & Procedures. Orick Declaration, Exhibit C.

24 On July 6, 2006, Polimaster and Na&Se filed a joint demand for arbitration asserting four

26 ² The four Polimaster products were the Gamma Pager PM1703M, Gamma-Neutron Pager
 27 PM1703GN, Pocket Gamma-Neutron Monitor PM1401GN, and Hand-Held Gamma-Neutron
 Monitor PM1710GN.

28 ³ Although the agreement provides that royalties on Polimaster products are to be paid to Na&Se, the precise nature of the relationship between Polimaster and Na&Se is unclear.

1 claims: (1) unlawful disclosure of confidential and proprietary information; (2) misappropriation
 2 of trade secrets; (3) unfair trade practices; and (4) breach of the Buy/Sell agreement. On August 3 7, 2006, RAE filed an answer which also asserted counterclaims arising out of the transactions 4 involved in the complaint. In response to the counterclaims, Polimaster argued that the 5 Arbitrator did not have jurisdiction over the counterclaims because, under the terms of the 6 License Agreement, claims must be brought at the defendant's location and because RAE failed 7 to negotiate in good faith prior to bringing its claims. The parties could not agree on the proper 8 body of procedural law to apply in settling this dispute. Polimaster argued that the Federal Rules
 9 of Procedure should apply, and RAE argued that the Arbitrator should follow California law 10 and/or JAMS Comprehensive Arbitration Rules. Orick Declaration, Exhibit G. Finding that the 11 contract was silent on the issue of whether counterclaims could be brought at the defendant's 12 location, the Arbitrator analyzed the question under California law, the Federal Rules and the 13 relevant JAMS provisions and denied Polimaster's motion to dismiss RAE's counterclaims. Id.

14 Hearings took place between March 5 and March 16, 2007. The parties agreed to a post-15 hearing briefing schedule that allowed each party to file two simultaneous briefs. However, the 16 Arbitrator subsequently allowed RAE to submit a third brief to address arguments pertaining to 17 the counterclaims raised for the first time in Polimaster's reply brief. Garden Declaration, 18 Exhibit 4. On July 5, 2007, the Arbitrator issued an interim award, which was followed by a 19 final award dated September 20, 2007. On October 5, 2007, RAE filed a motion to confirm the 20 arbitration award. Polimaster and Na&Se oppose this motion and move to vacate the award.
 21 This Court heard oral argument on December 7, 2007.

22 II. LEGAL STANDARD

23 Under 9 U.S.C. § 207, a party to a foreign arbitration may apply to federal district court 24 "for an order confirming the award as against any other party to the arbitration." "The district 25 court has little discretion: the court shall confirm the award unless it finds one of the grounds for 26 refusal or deferral of recognition or enforcement of the award specified in the New York 27 convention." Ministry of Def. Islamic Republic of Iran v. Gould, Inc., 969 F.2d 764, 770 (9th 28 Cir. 1992). The grounds for vacating an award under the New York Convention are as follows

1 1. Recognition and enforcement of the award may be refused, at the request of the party 2 against whom it is invoked, only if that party furnishes to the competent authority where 3 the recognition and enforcement is sought, proof that:

4 (a) The parties to the agreement referred to in article II were, under the law applicable to 5 them, under some incapacity, or the said agreement is not valid under the law to which 6 the parties have subjected it or, failing any indication thereon, under the law of the 7 country where the award was made; or 8 (b) The party against whom the award is invoked was not given proper notice of the 9 appointment of the arbitrator or of the arbitration proceedings or was otherwise unable to 10 present his case; or

11 (c) The award deals with a difference not contemplated by or not falling within the terms 12 of the submission to arbitration, or it contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of 13 the submission to arbitration, provided that, if the decisions on matters submitted to 14 arbitration can be separated from those not so submitted, that part of the award which 15 contains decisions on matters submitted to arbitration may be recognized and enforced; or 16 (d) The composition of the arbitral authority or the arbitral procedure was not in 17 accordance with the agreement of the parties, or, failing such agreement, was not in 18 accordance with the law of the country where the arbitration took place; or 19 (e) The award has not yet become binding, on the parties, or has been set aside or 20 suspended by a competent authority of the country in which, or under the law of which, 21 that award was made.

22 2. Recognition and enforcement of an arbitral award may also be refused if the 23 competent authority in the country where recognition and enforcement is sought finds 24 that:

25 (a) The subject matter of the difference is not capable of settlement by arbitration under 26 the law of that country; or

27 (b) The recognition or enforcement of the award would be contrary to the public policy 28 of that country.

These provisions are construed narrowly “[b]ecause a general pro-enforcement bias informed the convention.” Id.

Section 10(a) of the Federal Arbitration Act sets forth four grounds on which an arbitration award may be vacated:

(1) where the award was procured by corruption, fraud, or undue means;

(2) where there was evident partiality or corruption in the arbitrators, or either of them;

(3) where the arbitrators were guilty of misconduct in refusing to postpone the hearing, upon sufficient cause shown, or in refusing to hear evidence pertinent and material to the controversy; or of any other misbehavior by which the rights of any party have been prejudiced; or

(4) where the arbitrators exceeded their powers, or so imperfectly executed them that a mutual, final, and definite award upon the subject matter submitted was not made.

“These Grounds afford an extremely limited review authority, a limitation that is designed to preserve due process but not to permit unnecessary public intrusion into private arbitration procedures.” Kyocera Corp. v. Prudential-Bache Trade Servs., 341 F.3d 987, 998 (9th Cir. 2003).

III. DISCUSSION

1. Counterclaims

9 Polimaster and Na&Se argue that pursuant to the FAA, the award should be vacated 10 because the Arbitrator exceeded his authority by allowing RAE to assert counterclaims at its own 11 site despite the requirement in the arbitration agreements that claims be brought at the 12 responding party's location. “[A]rbitrators exceed their powers … not when they merely 13 interpret or apply the governing law incorrectly, but when the award is completely irrational.”
14 Kyocera, 341 F.3d at 997 (internal quotation omitted). When a court reviews an arbitration 15 award on this ground:

[t]he rule is, though the arbitrators' view of the law might be open to serious question, an award which is one within the terms of the submission, will not be set aside by a court for error either in law or fact if the award contains the honest decision of the arbitrators, after a full and fair hearing of the parties.

19 Coast Trading Co., Inc. v. Pac. Molasses Co., 681 F.2d 1195, 1198 (9th Cir. 1982). Where the 20 party seeking to vacate the award has argued that the arbitrator exceeded his authority by 21 deciding issues outside of the scope of the agreement, the Ninth Circuit has explained that the 22 court “will not disturb an arbitration order so long as the arbitrator even arguably construed or 23 applied the contract and acted within the scope of his authority.” Entm’t Publ’ns, Inc. v. Ravel, 7 24 Fed. Appx. 807, 808 (9th Cir. 2001).

25 Polimaster and Na&Se cite several cases for the proposition that courts must give effect 26 to clearly drafted forum selection clauses. See Snyder v. Smith, 736 F.2d 409, 418 (7th Cir.); 27 Felzen v. Andreas, 134 F.3d 873 (7th Cir.); KKW Entertainment, Inc. v. Gloria Jean's Gourmet
28 Coffees Franchising Corp., 184 F.3d 42, 48-50 (1st Cir. 1999); Nat'l Iranian Oil Co. v. Ashland

1 Oil, Inc., 817 F.2d 236, 330 (5th Cir. 1987). These cases are inapposite. While each of the cases
 2 cited by Polimaster and Na&Se involves a well-defined forum selection clause, the License 3 Agreement does not address counterclaims. Accordingly, the Arbitrator's conclusion that the 4 contract was silent on this issue meets the "arguably correct" standard. Because there was no
 5 clear agreement among the parties, it was appropriate for the Arbitrator to analyze the issue 6 under the JAMS rules as well as state and federal law, and his legal analyses were sound. This 7 Court thus concludes that the Arbitrator did not exceed his authority under the FAA.⁴

8 This Court also concludes that the award may be confirmed in accordance with Article 9 V(1)(d) of the New York Convention, which requires that courts refuse to confirm an arbitration 10 award when "the arbitral procedure was not in accordance with the agreement of the parties."
 11 The case of China Nat'l Metal Prods. v. Apex Digital, Inc., 379 F.3d 796, 799 (9th Cir. 2004), is 12 particularly instructive. China National involved an arbitration clause that was "indeterminate" 13 as to whether separate proceedings should be required to address both parties' claims. After 14 Apex commenced arbitration against China National in Shanghai, China National commenced a 15 separate arbitration against Apex in Beijing. The arbitration panel, using its own rules to 16 interpret arbitration agreements the mere silent on the subject of counterclaims, held that it 17 lacked authority to force China National to prosecute its claims as counterclaims in Shanghai and 18 allowed the two separate arbitrations to proceed. In affirming the arbitration panel's decision, 19 the Ninth Circuit held that the arbitration panel "did not trump specific terms of the parties' 20 purchase orders by turning to its own rules because the arbitral clause did not resolve the parties 21 dispute itself." Id. at 801. Although China National affirmed the propriety of two separate 22 proceedings and the arbitration in the instant case upheld a single proceeding, the principle is the 23 same: when the parties' agreement does not address the procedural question at hand, the 24 arbitrator's recourse to relevant procedural rules does not create a defense to enforcement under 25 Article V(1)(d) of the New York Convention.

26
 27 ⁴ At oral argument Polimaster and Na&Se argued that under Cyprus law counterclaims would 28 not be regarded as part of the original dispute. While this argument perhaps suggest that there was not a meting of the minds between parties, it was well within the Arbitrator's discretion to base his decision on this country's Federal Rules.

1 2. Legal Basis for the Award

2 Polimaster also contends that the award should be vacated because there is no legal basis 3 for holding Polimaster liable for a breach of the Licensing Agreement. However, “[the 4 arbitrator’s] interpretation of the contract binds the court asked to enforce the award or set it
 5 aside. The court substitute even if convinced that the arbitrator’s interpretation was not only 6 wrong, but plainly wrong.” Kyocera Corp., 341 F.3d at 999. The Ninth Circuit has explained 7 that judicial review of the merits of an arbitration award is limited to situations in which there 8 has been a “manifest disregard of the law:”

9 The manifest disregard exception requires something beyond and 10 different from a mere error in the law or failure on the part of the 11 arbitrators to understand and apply the law. Accordingly, we may 12 not reverse an arbitration award even in the face of an erroneous 13 interpretation of the law. Rather, to demonstrate manifest 14 disregard, the moving party must show that the arbitrator 15 understood and correctly stated the law, but proceeded to disregard 16 the same.

17 Collins v. D.R. Horton, Inc., No. 05-15737, 2007 WL 2756956 at *3 (9th Cir. April 17, 2007).
 18 Polimaster does not identify any legal reasoning in the arbitrator’s written opinion as the basis
 19 for its argument. In fact, the question of Polimaster’s liability under the license agreement 20 involved a finding of fact rather than a conclusion of law. The Arbitrator found as follows:

21 Polimaster claims that it was not a party to the License Agreement
 22 (which Polimaster signed) but that is contradicted by Polimaster’s 23 judicial admissions in the Complaint it filed in the District Court 24 and its Demand for Arbitration. The hearing testimony
 25 demonstrated that Polimaster was a party to the License 26 Agreement.

27 (emphasis added). Because Polimaster has not satisfied its burden of proving a manifest 28 disregard for the law, the arbitration award will not be vacated on this ground.

29 3. Efforts to Settle and Supplemental Briefing

30 Polimaster and Na&Se further contend that the Arbitrator exceeded his authority by 31 allowing the counterclaims to be arbitrated despite the fact that RAE had not made an adequate 32 effort to settle them and allowed RAE to file a supplemented brief. The Supreme Court has held 33 that where arbitrability is contested on procedural grounds, federal courts should compel

1 arbitration and refer consideration of procedural issues to the arbitrator. See, e.g., Green Tree
 2 Fin. Corp. v. Bazzle, 539 U.S. 444, 452 (2003); Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 537 U.S.
 3 79, 85 (2002) (finding that a dispute over the applicable time limit on a party's power to invoke 4 arbitration should be adjudicated by an arbitrator); Moses H. Cone Mem'l Hosp. v. Mercury 5 Const. Corp., 460 U.S. 1 (1983) (emphasizing that it is preferable for an arbitrator to decide 6 issues such as "waiver, delay, or a like defense to arbitrability"); John Wiley & Sons v. Liginstion, 7 376 U.S. 543, 556-67 (1964) (holding that an arbitrator, not a judge, should determine the 8 procedural prerequisites to arbitration). Courts in this jurisdiction have read this line of cases as 9 indicating that "[certain] types of disputes are generally beyond the purview of the judiciary.
 10 Generally speaking, there is a presumption that courts should not decide procedural questions 11 relating to an arbitration agreement." Barragan v. Washington Mut. Bank, No. 06-1646, 2006 12 WL 2479125 at *3 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 28, 2006).

13 Numerous courts have noted a distinction between questions of 14 procedure and questions of substantive arbitrability. Arbitrators 15 generally decide questions of procedure such as waiver, notice, and 16 other conditions precedent to an obligation to arbitrate. In contrast 17 courts generally decide substantive arbitrability questions, such as 18 whether the parties have a valid arbitration agreement at all or 19 whether a concededly binding arbitration clause applies to 20 particular dispute.

21 World Group Sec. v. Ko, No. 035005 MJJ (EDL), 2004 WL 1811145 at *2 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 11, 22 2004) (internal citations omitted).

23 Accordingly, this Court will not substitute its own assessment of the adequacy of RAE's 24 efforts to settle the counterclaims for the Arbitrator's determination. Nor will the Court decide 25 independently whether it was appropriate for the Arbitrator to allow RAE to file a third post-26 hearing brief.

27 4. Consent

28 Finally, Polimaster and Na&Se contend that the award may not be confirmed because the 29 License Agreement did not contain any consent to the arbitration award being confirmed by a 30 Court. The two provisions of the FAA that provide courts with authority to confirm arbitration 31 awards contain conflicting consent requirements. 9 U.S.C. § 207 instructs that "within three

1 years after an arbitral award falling under the Convention is made, any party to the arbitration
 2 may apply to any court having jurisdiction under this chapter for an order confirming the award
 3 as against any other party to the arbitration.” 9 U.S.C. § 9 is more restrictive:

4 If the parties in their agreement have agreed that a judgment of the 5 court shall be entered upon the award made pursuant to the 6 arbitration, and shall specify the court, then at any time within one 7 year after the award is made any party to the arbitration may apply 8 to the court so specified for an order confirming the award.

9 In reconciling these two provisions, circuit courts have split with respect to the question
 10 of whether consent is required. Compare Daihatsu Motor Co., Inc v Terrain Vehicles, Inc., 1992 11 WL133036 at *3 (N.D. Ill. 1992), aff'd on other grounds, 13 F.3d 196 (7th Cir. 1993) with 12 Phoenix Aktiengesellschaft v. Ecoplas, Inc., 291 F.3d 433 436-38 (2d Cir. 2004). The Ninth 13 Circuit has not addressed this issue. However, they Court finds the Second Circuit's analysis to 14 be persuasive. As that court Second Circuit has explained:

15 Congress implemented the Convention twelve years later
 16 by enacting Chapter 2 of the FAA, now codified at 9 U.S.C.
 17 §§201-208. The Convention's purpose was to encourage the 18 recognition and enforcement of commercial arbitration agreements 19 in international contracts and to unify the standards by which the 20 recognition and enforcement of commercial arbitration agreements 21 to arbitrate awards are enforced in the signatory countries.
 22 Pursuant to 9 U.S.C. § 208, the pre-convention provisions of the 23 FAA- that is, the provisions of Chapter 1, 9 U.S.C. § 1-16-
 24 continue to apply to the enforcement of foreign arbitration awards 25 except to the extent that chapter 1 conflicts with the Convention or 26 Chapter 2.

27 Aktiengesellschaft, 391 F.3d at 435. Applying this reasoning, the court held that 207 28 preempts § 9. In keeping with Aktiengesellschaft, this Court also holds that there is no consent requirement.

IV. ORDER

Good cause therefor appearing, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the arbitration award is
